

“Maria Mosina and Igor Vassine” by John DeAndrea installed in 2006 at the Denver Performing Arts Complex - Ellie Caulkins Opera House.

“Maria Mosina and Igor Vassine” is a life-like sculpture made from bronze and painted with a polychrome oil paint. The artist wanted viewers to be able to “see” the ballet dancers up close, not just up on stage. If you look closely you can see details like hair, muscles, and even freckles.
